Introduction

This resource has been developed to bring together information about some of the community-based organisations who provide assistance for adolescents and young adults who are diagnosed with cancer, as well as their families and friends.

The aim of the resource guide is to assist staff facilitating support for adolescents and young adults with cancer and their families.

The organisations are listed with their contact details, key areas and eligibility criteria for easy access. The resource has been collated into specific sections. As some organisations provide a number of services, they may appear in more than one section.

Referrals to community organisations can generally be completed by a staff member, however in some situations, families are able to communicate directly with the organisation.

Background

The Adolescent and Young Adult (AYA) years are a time when individuals develop their self-image, seek autonomy and independence from their parents and deal with issues of emerging sexuality. Social and peer acceptance; career and education considerations and the desire for independence are among the issues to be considered when caring for the adolescent patient with cancer.

The Queensland Youth Cancer Service (QYCS) has been established to support young people with cancer aged 15 – 25 years, their families and carers. The QYCS team can provide medical, nursing and psychosocial support, and assistance in coordinating treatment for AYAs.

QYCS aims to support health professionals working with AYAs with cancer. QYCS provides professional development and education for health professionals.

QYCS Contact Details

Contact QYCS with any youth cancer related enquiries. We accept referrals from doctors, nurses, allied health, and patients can self-refer directly to the Central Team via the website. We are also happy to accept general enquires that are not patient related.

Health Professional Learning and Development

Education Videoconferences

The QYCS Central Team facilitate the delivery of a monthly Videoconference series with a different health professional presenting each month. Topics relate to adolescent and young adult (AYA) health and wellbeing, and developmentally relevant care and support in the context of a cancer diagnosis. Previous topics include difficult conversations, sexual health and fertility, epidemiology of AYA cancer, germ cell tumours, transplants in the AYA population and neurophysiology of the AYA brain.

The videoconference series is circulated every month to over 400 health professionals across Queensland and northern New South Wales.

To be added to the mailing list for the video conference series, please email QYCS_CHQ@health.qld.gov.au

Free learning online modules

Coventry University and Teenage Cancer Trust eLearning Webapp

Coventry University in association with Teenage Cancer Trust have designed a e-Learning Webapp for people new to working with Adolescents and Young Adults with Cancer. Because the modules are based on young people in the UK, statistics, treatment centre choice and resources are not relevant to Australian clinicians but the content provides underpinning knowledge of teenage and young adulthood in general so that the learner can understand the key principles of care and address their needs at this age and stage of life.

<https://cele.coventry.ac.uk/tyacancer/index.htm>

eviQ Education Adolescent and Young Adult Cancer Care Modules

eviQ Education offers a free online learning program for Registered Nurses wanting to develop their knowledge and skills in adolescent and young adult cancer care. The program provides a broad overview of AYA cancer care in the Australian Context and was developed by the Victorian Adolescent and Young Adult Cancer Service. The program is divided into four modules:

Module 1: Cancer in adolescents and young adults

Module 2: Youth focused consultations and assessments

Module 3: Psychological and social support

Module 4: Life after cancer

<https://education.eviq.org.au/courses/supportive-care/adolescent-and-young-adult-cancer-care>

Global Adolescent Health

The Centre for Adolescent Health also offers an intensive 8-week Global Adolescent Health online course that explores the health and wellbeing of young people across the different countries and regions of the world. More information can be found here:

https://www.rch.org.au/cah/education_training/Professional_development/

Headspace

Headspace provide free online training modules for GP's and Allied Health professionals working with young people.

Module 1: Youth Mental Health

Module 2: Alcohol and other Drugs and Sexual Health in Young People

Module 3: Developmental Disorders and Intellectual Disability in Young People

Post Graduate Courses

The Centre for Adolescent Health, through the Department of Paediatrics, Faculty of Medicine, Dentistry and Health Sciences at the University of Melbourne, offers online postgraduate courses that integrate knowledge from a range of disciplines (including medicine, psychology, sociology, social work, youth work, public health and health promotion), and examines the different theoretical frameworks and professional approaches these disciplines bring to working with young people.

Course Options: Graduate Certificate Adolescent Health and Wellbeing (Oncology Stream)

Graduate Diploma Adolescent Health and Wellbeing

Masters Adolescent Health and Wellbeing

Information at: <https://study.unimelb.edu.au/find/courses/graduate/graduate-certificate-in-adolescent-health-and-wellbeing/>

Occasionally, scholarships are offered by CanTeen Australia to health professionals working with AYA with cancer to assist the above course. For more information, please check the Canteen website
